

The Journey of the Incoming Soul

In connection with Embryology

Elissa Dell & Sophia Smith: A Collaboration

April 24th – 26th 2020

This workshop explores the interweaving of spirit, soul and body that unfolds during embryological development. This includes the sacred role of the placenta, the emerging science of 'womb ecology' and wisdom traditions' understanding of the individual soul's journey into incarnation.

We will be learning new ways of supporting the physiological and affirming the spiritual, which might also nourish our own biography. From conception to birth and beyond, Nature and Spirit cradle and kindle our emergence into visibility.

In diverse cultures throughout history, unborn souls on their way to earth have communicated with their mother or father-to-be, or their tribe. In our day, Before Conception Experiences (BCEs) are being taken more seriously, as are Near-Death Experiences (NDEs). Human consciousness transcends the purely material human form and brain.

The embryo takes us to a shared primal landscape: a place of unity from which we step out at birth. Through image, imagination and our felt sense we will be considering the support structures in embryological development, as a way of exploring the deeper formative processes at work.

This workshop qualifies as 18 hrs. Primary CPD for the CSTA (Craniosacral Association)
